Tschaikowsky (and Other Russians)

Mark Nadler triumphantly returns with "Tschaikowsky (and Other Russians)," inspired by the list of 48 composers spun into a song by Ira Gershwin and Kurt Weill that made Danny Kaye a star overnight in "Lady in the Dark". Mark takes off from there, with a virtuosic whirlwind revealing secrets of the composers in a madcap, richly layered and ultimately deeply moving study of the fleeting foot of fame.

"It takes a comic spark plug touched with brilliance to pull off the kind of tour de force that Mark Nadler has brought in his one-man show."

-Stephen Holden, The New York Times
